“ I grew up under Jere at Camelot. Then I told the Godfather I'm going to be head floor at Crestwood as soon as it opens as he smiled and winked at me. That's when I met and worked for Tony. He turned us all into a working family(it was never work for me :) and soon as sessions were over I would dust the wood floor off put the cones down and and rip around till the next session. Tony would come out of office and laugh and say you never come off that floor. I would just say thanks Boss for letting spin some quick laps. I will now salute and smile up to Tony Jere and Pops when I go to next adult skate because they will be rolling w/me. Watch over me fellas we all miss you.

“ I didn't realize this when I wrote the first post but after reading and hearing stories of Champs Skating Rink from people ALL OVER Louisville, it is clear that Tony and his family's legacy has reached far and wide around these parts. Just spoke to my cousin who did speed skating with the Champa boys in Valley Station years and years ago. The social scene WAS Champs. So many people from the baby boomer generation to the present have been to one of the Champs rinks. For at least 55 years Champs and roller skating have been a part of this city's history. This may be the end of an era but the city of Louisville will always have the honor to be part of a legend. RIP Tony, and thanks for the memories...💕

“ I remember in high school Anthony driving his pretty little vette everyday. The guys were so jealous and the girls, well...put it this way, he was never lonesome 🥺. As for the skating rink, im sure there are better stories out there than I have. As a father he always supported Anthony in every way. He would come to ALL the book fairs. What an awesome family, so well known in this end of the city. Fairwell my little roller blade buddy 💕

I have a huge lump in my throat reading all of the comments for Tony and family. Champs was the unparalleled greatest part of growing up. Jere and Tony kept us safe and were always happy to see us all. All night skates were the jam! Working there on and off for years was always fun. They will never ever be forgotten. Love to Amanda and Anthony and many prayers for your great loss
