“ I was one of Carol's favorite customers. I was on her naughty list which was a cheat sheet for dummies that didn't know their account numbers or were too lazy to fill out a deposit slip. After several years it just became a game with myself and her. I always enjoyed our conversations of politics, millennials, and the world in general. She never held anything back and would always tell you exactly what she thought. She was my good friend and I think she always enjoyed my inappropriate jokes I would whisper to her across the teller window. I will never forget her or her smile every time I walked into the bank. I will miss her dearly.

“ I am so privileged to have known Carol and call her friend. She taught me a lot about perseverance and I admired how she cherished family and friends. She will be sorely missed by all who knew her, but we will keep those priceless memories of how she kept us laughing, mostly at ourselves. My prayers go out to her family. Barbara McKee
