“ Praying for you Susan. As years rushed into adulthood and life took over, I lost much of the closeness to extended family. Im going to sound really old saying this, but as a kid our family vacations consisted of visiting family for the most part. We always looked forward to those trips, seeing grandparents, digging for fresh candy in mamaws candy dish, hearing roaring laughter coming from aunts and uncles... not understanding how "old" people could possibly find anything so funny (but it was contagious and we all wanted in on it). Illegal fireworks. Seeing older cousins, we wished we could be as cool as, and welcoming new younger cousins that made us feel older and cool. All that to say FAMILY... what a gift. One of the many fun places to visit was Aunt Happy and Uncle BB's. Aunt Happy was the picture of poise and class to us. Always a smile... always the little prepster... always a gracious hostess and welcoming. When we were young, Happy would stock the downstairs "party room" with welch's grape juice, popcorn and assorted treats. She made us feel welcomed and special. Aunt Happy made the best pimento cheese. That portrait of George Washington in her living room had the eyes that would follow you across the room. She would let us monopolize BB for a day of fishing. I could go on and on about Aunt Happy and BB, and other grandparents, aunts and uncles and cousins. I'm one of those people who sadly hasn't stayed as close to extended family as I should have, but the memories are none the less real and treasured. We will miss you Aunt Happy. May we all value family. Much love and see you all Tuesday.

“ QE2 and Rocco:

*God hath not promised skies always blue...
Flower-strewn pathways all our lives through...
God hath not promised sun without rain,
Joy without sorrow, peace without pain...
God hath not promised we shall not know
Toil and temptation, trouble and woe.
He hath not told us we shall not bear
Many a burden, many a care.
But God hath promised strength for the day,
Rest for the laborer, light for the way...
Grace for the trials, help from above,
Unfailing sympathy, undying love.*

My Grandmom kept this "saying" at her bedside. I hope it gives you strength in the days and years ahead. Aunt Happy was a "class act" - gracious, kind, beautiful and humble. I hope her seat "upstairs" helps UK in March! My bracket will reflect that in her memory!

Love QE1, Demi, Elyse and Maggie
