“ I didn't know John very well -- He and I worked at the Lottery together, but he retired not too many years after I started, plus he worked out in the field and I worked in the office. But, he would stop in on occasion to visit after retiring, and I would get the opportunity to chat with him off and on. I had a bout with cancer myself a few years ago --- John always expressed compassion and it was always good to see and talk with him. He always had a very positive attitude about his own struggles with 'The Big C' through the years, which was extremely helpful to me at the time. In this, he made a near stranger's struggle with her own cancer a little bit easier to bear and to deal with. For this I am thankful, and for this I will remember John.

God Bless, and sympathy to John's family and friends.
