“ Jordan, the best memory I have with you is when you hold a phone for my family in Indonesia to see me marrying your cousin, Theo. I didn't know about that. But I was so surprised to hear their voices. You cooked very yummy Turkey and it's my first time Thanksgiving. You and Porshia allowed me to bring some home. Have fun with Jesus.

“ Jordan...cutest little blonde boy. Your dad would say...mark; set; go and you would run in a big circle around the yard as fast as you could. You were the only teenager that I would ever trust to drive Katie and Adam around. They called you Georgie.. you will always be Georgie to me. Some people...are just too special for this world. As your family and friends attempt to go on without you...I know we will see you again someday and we will do our best to make you proud.

“ I still think you're going to come bouncing through the back door at Granny's, make your classic high-pitched, cat like noise (which is meant to mock Granny, lovingly of course) and then say “man, I really got you guys good.” Like the time you convinced Adam and I the Lochness Monster resided in the lower pond. I do not have many childhood memories without you in them. “Jordan, Katie, Adam” was all one word, and along with John Greathouse, the family farm was our own magical playground. To the frustration of our grandfather, we would stay up super late watching one of three VHS's on rotation, and then sleep well beyond day break. Then vex frugal Granny by going to the only diner in Custer to order eggs and toast. Irritating Granny was a pastime of ours, and I've never laughed harder than when we high jacked her answering machine and you created messages pretending to be her. Our clever leader. We idolized you. As we grew, life happened and the carefree days of childhood drifted away like the foam boat we lazily floated in under the endless summer sun. Even as busy adults not catching-up as often as we would like, our adolescent bond remained and a one-liner from those days could transport us back, sending us into fits of laughter. Now you are forever young and agile. Meet me in the tobacco barn, I'll be up in the rafters where we played tag, waiting and watching for you.
