“ Joe and I grew up playing baseball together at Valley Sports. I was the pitcher and he was the catcher. I still remember the phrase “Be a wall” he lived by behind that plate. We grew older and became golfing partners, I’ll cherish the round of 18 we got cut short by rain. Joe was a appreciative person, he messaged me hours later after that day thanking me for taking him along and saying how much he appreciated it. Just days ago, we planned to get another round of golf in. I will forever play in your memory and won’t let a round of golf go by without thinking of you. Love ya brotha!

“ Joseph white.. my pal, my best friend and more then a brother. We have been friends since I was a junior/senior in high school. Very close to 10years. The first time I met Joe one of the first things I learned about him was his beat boxing skills & if you never got a chance to hear it I'm sorry. It was truly one of a kind. To everyone else who knows about that experience are easily smiling right now while reading this. Over time we became inseparable. We hungout on a daily basis. That year he transferred to PRP from valley (where I went all 4 years) where we only became closer. We would walk to school with each other, walk home with each other, sometimes even meet up in between classes. We need we had each other's back no matter what. I had pretty much moved in with Joe and Becky that year through the rest of atleast my time in school. On a side note I think Becky fell in love with me as joes best bud bc I would always come and watch family feud with her after school while Joseph played the game. After that era of my life I didn't know but I had met the mother of my child Bri davis & who will soon be my wife next year. Before Joseph had the truck and needed a ride anywhere his grandparents would bring him over almost daily bc we lived so close to one another. We would just spend all day watching tv, playing golf or bowling on the wii bc we didn't have internet lol. As time goes on Joe was given the truck and still would come over daily sometimes as early as 8am. We just didn't want to do anything else but be around each other it seemed like. Sometimes while I was at work Joe would come hangout with Bri and just wait till I got home to chill. Joe was family. Everything more but nothing less. Fast forward some more. Me and Bri recently bought a house and some of you know we have had our first child.. Oliver. Joseph would become uncle Joe that year. Oliver will be 1 this coming Monday. We haven't seen joe to often this past year due to Covid but we are blessed to say Joe was able to see and hold Oliver a couple times before we moved. Joe also helped us get our mattress to our house and in the bedroom and got to see Oliver then. I expected to joe to be in my life forever as well as Oliver's. However, god had a different plan which will be hard to accept but I know more then anything that this world isn't the same for him without his grandpa and especially his mom Becky.. life wasn't easy for joe and he did the best he could at any and everything. God took my brother and everyday will get easier but every memory will linger in my heart for the rest of my life. He didn't deserve to go so soon but I know he's happy now. He's safe. He's healthy. & most importantly he's okay now. No more struggles or stress. He's up there with his favorite people. His mom, grandpa and even Lenin.. one day we will all be with him again & I'll keep that in the back of mind. We love you Joseph. & I know you'll be by my side and ollies for the rest of our life. Thank you for the memories and time spent. See you sometime brother❤️😞

“ Wayne and I were so sorry to hear of Joe's passing. I was only able to meet him once with Ryder, but such a kind and gentle young man. Wayne has always shared great stories and memories of Joe as a young baseball player and golfer. Our hearts are broken for your loss and our prayers are with you all.

“ I remember Joseph from Church, he was in my Sunday School class when he was a small boy. He was such a sweet child. I have a special place in my heart for him. After he got to be an adult, he was in the same class as I was last year. My sympathies go out to his grandmother, Helen and his sisters. Loved you young man.
