“ Mel, I can't believe you have been gone for almost 4 months. Nobody knew me like you, and nobody knew you like me. You are forever holding a piece of my heart that you took with you the day you left me. I finally got my tattoo for you. It gives me comfort knowing that I have your memory with me forever. I can still hear your voice and see your face with those sparkling blue eyes every time I close my eyes. I feel so empty without you here. Your girls, KK, and your Momma miss you terribly. You escaped the pain and troubles of this world, and for that, I'm forever grateful. I love you Mel. Til I see you again 💜

Yes it has baby girl. I struggle so much every day. I beat myself up every day thinking maybe there was something I could have done if I had only been there. I failed the one person in my life that never failed me. I will never forgive myself. At least I carry her memory on my arm and in my deepest heart. I love you girls just as much, if not more, than I did your Momma. She was almost always the light at the end of my tunnel, and it destroys me to know that she couldn't see the light at the end of hers. We are family and we will never let anyone break us, that's all your Momma ever wanted. I will continue to love you girls until my last breath. Please let me be your safe place. You can tell me anything and I will never judge any of you. I am so blessed to have you guys in my life, thank you for loving me, even when I don't love myself.
