“ Uncle Frank, there was so much more I wanted to say today, but my heart was in my throat. It meant so much to me to be called a plumber by you. It meant that I had stuck it out, and was a member of your fraternity. I have friends who apprenticed under you and I. They are better men, and plumbers, having been in your care. The last time we spoke, we told one another that we loved one another, and I know that is true.... God speed Uncle Frank.....
